

Artist Bio

Diana Nguyen is a ceramic artist based in Orange County. A lifelong Californian, she received her AA in Studio Arts at Golden West College and transferred to California State University Long Beach, where she received her Bachelor of Fine Arts in Ceramics.

In her free time, she makes most of her work at the studio in Golden West College, alternating between sculptural works driven by themes of self-discovery, identity, and the sub consciousness to strictly utilitarian thrown pieces. Characteristics of the surface plays a large part in her work to a point of fixation, from subtle lines and colors to intricate carvings and textures. The methodical repetition of forming each part helps to catalyze the overarching idea of each work.

Remnant Thoughts 1 is a part of a series that evolved from previous works at CSULB in which she explores the concepts and processes of introspection. This series distills the culmination of those thoughts into singular moments of intense clarity.
